THE 2008 AND 2009 BUDGETS

- Congress is working on a $100+ billion 2008 supplemental appropriations bill, primarily for war funding.
- It’s still unclear whether $300-$500 million in science funding will be in the supplemental (DOE Science, NSF, NIST).
- Congress is still working on a final 2009 budget resolution, which could allocate up to $25 billion more for domestic appropriations than the President’s request.
- After the budget resolution, the first 2009 appropriations could be drafted in May.

WHAT’S NEXT?

- By Memorial Day, Congress hopes to have a 2008 supplemental on the President’s desk. The President may veto it.
- The Appropriations Committees will try to write and pass 12 2009 appropriations bills. But Congress is already considering delaying appropriations until the next President is in office.
